Katie Coyne has over 40 years of experience as a judge, coach, and judging team member. She currently coaches judges on showing etiquette, showmanship, and type class protocols. Her judging teams have won state and national honors as she focuses on the fundamentals of good type when coaching. She has judged regional, state, and national shows in 20 states and has attended two judges trainings in Ontario, Canada.

She owns several show heifers and competes at all levels, following a family tradition that has produced All-American nominations in several breeds over the past 50 years. Katie is the owner of Mill Wheel Show Clinics and travels around the US to teach fitting, nutrition, and showmanship to youth who strive to be competitive in the showing.
