Luke Olson was born and raised on a Registered Holstein farm 2.5 miles south of Hutchinson, Minn. and resides there today. Luke, along with his family, remains active in different parts of the dairy industry today. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 2007 with a degree in animal science.

Luke worked for Semex for over nine years. He currently works for Merck Animal Health and has been there for four years. Luke plays an active role on the home dairy farm where they milk around 20 cows after a big reduction sale in April 2022. Being active at church and spending time with family is very important to him. In his spare time, he enjoys socializing with friends, traveling, the outdoors, and supporting his high school sports team along with Minnesota's collegiate and professional team.
