Shawn Winner was raised on a 700-cow dairy farm in western Ohio, where he developed an early passion for dairy genetics and herd management. His hands-on experience growing up in the industry laid the foundation for a lifelong commitment to dairy science. Shawn went on to study at the Ohio State Agricultural Technical Institute, where he majored in Dairy Science and competed on the dairy judging team. Among his accomplishments, he earned seventh place overall at the 2009 World Dairy Expo Judging Contest.

Throughout the years, Shawn has remained actively involved with the Holstein breed, both in breeding programs and in the show ring, participating in numerous dairy shows across Ohio. For the past decade, he has served as a Certified Technician with Select Sires Member Cooperative, providing reproductive services and genetic support to dairy producers. His deep industry knowledge, practical experience, and commitment to quality have made him a respected figure within the dairy community.
